A Touching Sketch.

"MEET LIZZIE AT SIX."

That was all dispatch contained. Four little words; yet what an excitement they caused in the household at Maple Cottage, the sober, quiet household, whose members at the moment of its reception were on the point of going to rest for the night.

"Meet Lizzie at six!" Was our darling, indeed, so near to us? Two years and six months had passed since our eyes had been gladdened by her girlish beauty, since her voice had mingled with the bird music that floated all the long summer days among the maples. Two years and three months she had been buried among books in a far distant city bowing her curls over algebra and geometry, grammer philosophy, astronomy and botany, French and Latin: patiently at first; because her parents desired it; afterwards, cheerfully, to please the teachers she had learned to love; and at last, zealously, from pure thirst for the pleasure these studies unlocked to her. But ir was over now, those toilsome years, she way on her way to us once more our Lizzie our pet and pride, we should meet her "at six."

She left B—— in the morning; had journeyed without stopping all day; this we guessed at once; and at eight in the evening, finding a hasty opportunity, she had telegraphed to us the words above.

At last the eastern train arrived at station. Lizzie was to ride all night for the sake of reaching home early. It was like her, impulse, warm-hearted child that she was.

There was Hannah, too, bewildering the mother about breakfast. "Did Lizzie like coffee or cocoa best? And would she make biscuits or waffles?" And the mother smiled all the time, nodded her head to everything, and went hurrying about, with the gridiron in one hand and the egg-boiler in the other, coaxing Fanny to curl she baby's hair, and looking at the clock tvery five minutes. But Fanny, with mysterious apron full of some-thing, was flitting up stairs and down, leaving a book here, a flower there, a daguerreotype on the table, or a rosy-cheeked fall apple in the window something for Lizzie to see and smile at. Only the father seemed undisturbed. We noticed, to be sure, that the dimples in his cheeks, which Lizzie always said she made with her her fingers when she was a babe, looked deeper when he smiled, and that his voice was a trifle less steady when he told Thomas to bring the horses; but he did not like to be considered a demonstrative man, so we only looked significantly at each other and said nothing. Still waters are sometimes very deep.

At last the carriage came round, and we got in; two of us beside the father, who was to drive. There was room for more, but it was quite out of her line, the mother said, to go on a dashing drive before breakfast; so we left her on the piazza, with the pickle dish in her hand and wiping her eyes with her apron.

It was half a mile to the depot, and the sun had not quite risen when we started.

How balmy and pure the air was that soft September morning. We thought, egotistical as we are in our happiness, that nature sympathised with us. It seemed as if there had never been as fair as sunrise before, and half the glory of the morning would have been wasted had Lizzie not been coming home.

The cars had not arrived when we stopped at the station, but we heard the whistle of the locomotive, not very far distant; and those sweet waiting moments what a world of blessed anticipation they held. The sun was rising—ah, Lizzie! Lizzie!

At last the train came up and stopped. We looked at the windows; only a row of sad faces! Lizzie must have sat on the other side. A few passengers came out solemn-faced silent. We pressed forward, so did those who were going out on the train. The conductor appeared and waved everybody back, then motioned to some in the car. Two men came out, and slowly descended the steps, dearing a lifeless body—a woman; her features covered by a veil. They bore it into a saloon, and laid it reverently upon a sofa. Still the conductor waved the crowd back except our party! He knew us, and turned away his face as we approached.

Then we knew how it was; all except the father, he could not believe! Finally he raised the veil from the dead face. Oh, God! All merciful! Is it thus we meet thee Lizzie darling, our best beloved, idol of our hearts!

In a brief time we learned the story learned how the Angel of the Lord had "met Lizzie" before us, in the still twilight autumn morning, and after one pang, terrible we know, but brief, had wafted this gentle spirit to those who waited for her in the home of angels.

At the very last stopping place, Lizzie had left the car to procure some food for a wearied child tha had fretted all night in the arms of a wearied mother. The train stopped but a moment, it was dusk, and none of the officials had noticed her leave She returned hastily to find it moving, made mis-step, fell forward—and the rest it is a common tale, such as newspapers chronicle every week. The beautiful head with its sunny curls, was what we saw at the station house!

We shed no tears at first; though it seemed as if a drop could save our hearts from bursting; it would not come; not even when one who, we afterwards learn d, was on his way to a wedding party, and who, journeying a few hours with Lizzie, had yet learrned to know her good as beautiful, came up and laid in tearful silence, a bonquet of pure white rosebuds on that bosom. We buried them with her—the stranger's kindly offering of sympathy and regret.

Blessed be God of tears! They came at last—came when they saw the mothers. That scene is too sacred for detail. But the old grandfather's mind wandered when he heard the tidings, and all day long he sat in his arm chair on the porch, listening for the whistle of the train, and saying, as his dull ear faintly distinguished it;

When told again, he would seem to comprehend for a few moments; and once he called the creeping baby to him, and patting its white shoulders, said:

"Grandsire's old and lame, and blind; he can't go to the station, but grandsire's going to see Lizzie first after all. Yes, yes, grandsire's not so far from his little gal as the rest of them, but we're all following!"

THE BROTHERS.

BY E. BAILEY CHANCY.

In 1849, the principal banking institutions of the chance kind in San Francisco, were the Belle Union, Verandah, Nim de Oro and Parker House, all situated about the Plaza, and each employed a band of music to lessen the tedious hours of that rainy winter, and to drown the noise of dingling gold and silver, and the cursing ejaculations of the gamblers. Many a sad scene has taken place within these saloons and chilled the blood of the beholder, and is remembered with horror. I was once saunting through one of these places. My attention was attracted towards a person who had large piles of gold before him. The starting eye-balls, the swollen veins upon his forehead, the cold sweat upon his face and clenched hands told of heavy losses. Mingled exclamatsons of horror and contempt would escape him, and he seemed unconcious of all that was going on around him. His gaze was bent upon the cards as if his life's blood was the stake at issue. In this case his last dollar was placed within the dealer's bank; then with the frenzy of a maniac, he drew a long dirk-knife and plunged it up to the hilt into his own body, and sunk a corpse upon the table. A few rude jeers followed this act; the body was removed, and the game went on though nothing had happened—as though another victim had not been added to the gambler's damning record, or another soul had not gone to its final account.

I learned this much of his history. He started with a large stock of goods given him by his father to sell on commission, and the father's fortune depended upon a safe return of the money so invested; but, as is usual with young men, he indulged in the full liberty of unbridled licentiousness, and while the ship stopped at one of the South American ports, he engendered the first seeds of "play." But for a while after his arrival, the excitment of trade and the energy necessary to accomplish a successful issue kept his mind busy. One day, by appointment, he was to meet a mercantile friend at this time, and while waiting for his friend's arrival, staked a few dollars upon the turn of cards, when the latent disease sprang into life, and carried him headlong over the procipice, and ended in the tragic manner related.

The Nim de Oro was a gambling soloon on Washington St., opposite the El Dorado, and in 1049 was the principal resort of the disband soldiers of the California regiment, and also of the soldiers that had been engaged in the war with Mexico.

Behind one of the largest monte-banks in the room sat a man who had won for himself honorable mention, and an officer's commission was given him for his bravery at the storming of Monterey; but preferring the climate of California and its golden prospects to a more northern home he embarked for that country at tee close of the war with Mexico, and, upon arriving, he opened a gambling saloon. The emigrants came in by thousands, and a few nights after his arrival, a young man entered the saloon and seated himself at the bank, and staked various sums upon the cards until he had lost nealy all the money that he possessed.

Excited by the play, and maddened with his losses, he accused the dealer of cheating; the dealer replied sharply to the accusation; the lie passed, when the young man struck the dealer a severe blow upon the face. Quick as thought, the sharp report of a pistol followed, and the gambler's clothing was covered with the young man's blood he had shot him through the right breast. The room was cleared of the spectators present, the door closed, and medical attendance called in to aid the wounded man.

The gambler sat moodily over his bank, running the small monte-cards through his fingers, and perhaps thinking of the deed just perpetrated, when the wounded man gave a groan of agony as the doctor's probe reached to the bottom of the wound.

The doctor inquired what State he was from, and the wounded man replied,—

"From Vermont."

The gambler raised his head, for it had been a long time since he had seen a person from the home of his childhood, and Vermont being the name of his native State, the mere mention of the name interested him.

The doctor next inquired the name of the place where his parents resided, if he had any. The wounded man replied.—

"Montpelier."

The gambler sprang to his feet, his limbs trembled, and his face was as pale as death, for Eontpelier was the home of his youth, and perhaps the wounded man have been his playmate in childoood—perhaps a schoolmate—knew his parents, his brothers and sisters. He clung convulsively to the table, and, with contending emotions of rapid though, and the weight of injury inflicted, he could scarcely keep upon his feet.

A stimulant was given to the wounded man, and he was momentarily relieved from that weakness the body is so subject to after a severe wound, when, the doctor inquired if there was any friend in the the city he wished to send for.

"Yes," he replied, "my wife. She is at the City Hotel, on the corner of Clay and Kearney streets. Tell Mary to hasten, for I am badly hurt."

A man was sent to bring his wife.

"Doctor," said the gambler, "save that man's life, and there is my bank, and $10,000 in Burgoyne, and you shall have it all."

The doctor felt the pulse of man, and probed the wound anew. The gambler watched him with great anxiety until the inspection was finished, when the doctor shook his head in token of impossibility. The gambler sat by the side side of the wounded man, bathed his head, and staunched the flow of blood from the wound, until the arrival of his wife She came, accompanied by a few friends, and as heroic women bear their misfortunes, she bore hers. Not a word of reproach escaped her—words of cheerfulness only came from her lips as tears coused down her cheeks. To her inquiries as to the chances of her husband's recovery, the doctor assured her there was no hope, that the wound was mortal and that in a few hours the man must die. She sank down upon her knees, and invoked the mercy of a forgiving God upon her dying husband and his murderer.

The gambler knelt at the side of the wounded man, asked his forgiveness for the wrong he had committed, also that of his wife, which was readily granted.

"This," said he, "is for disobeying the sacred injuctions of my aged father and mother. I have faced death a thousand, times, and still I have escaped; the balls of an enemy have whistled past my ears as thick as hailstones, and the bursting bomb has exploded at my feet. Still I have lived; O God, and for this! High above the red of battle I have carried my country's ensign, and that won for me a name among men. When not one of my comrades was left to tell of the battle I escaped unscathed. Why was I not killed with the rest? All that was proud and pleasing to man I have had; and if I could recall this last act by living upon carrion, sleeping in a pauper's grave, and renouncing every proud act of my life, I would do it. I was born in the same village with that man; we were born beneath the same roof, and—O God! the same mother gave us birth! He must not die—he is my brother!" And the gambler sunk down in a swoon upon the floor.

The wounded man raised himself upon his elbows; his glazed eyes wandered about the room, as if searching for some particular person.

"Mary," said he, "is my brother William here? I—"

The words chocked in his throat, the gurgling blood stopped his utterance, and he sank back a corpse upon his pillow.

The gambler awoke from his swoon, staggered up to the wife, and said,—

"Mary, would it were otherwise, for I have nothing to live for now; the dead and dying want nothing in this world; take this certificate of deposit to our aged father, and tell our parents we are both dead; but oh, do not tell them how we died!"

Before the woman could reply or any one interfere, the report of a pistol sounded again, and the fratricide had ceased to live! On the hill near Guicon Point were two graves, a few years aga, enclosed with a picket fence, and one tombstone at their head with the simple inscription, "BROTHERS."

Two well-known sports met yester day afternoon on Montgomery street, at the corner of Sacramento, and commenced to quarrel about a certain female, who resides up-town somewhere. From words they came to blows, and finally one drew a knife, when the other raised his cane and commenced laying the blows on his opponent thick and heavy. This continued for a few moments, when the combatants were separated by somo of their acquaintances, and each party went off in an opposite direction. No arrests.

DEAREST COME KISS ME.

An Eastern paper published a poem commencing:

Dearest, come kiss me; my lips are yet warm.
And my bosom still pants from the clasp of thine arm;
The blood dances wildly through each throbbing vein,
But I droop, Oh! I droop, for thy kisses again!

To which a very "fresh" young gentleman promptly replies:

Je roo-sa-lem, dearest, I dart like a fish;
My lips shall with kisses respond to thy wish,
I'll check not the blood thrilling wild in each vein,
But I'll stop thee from drooping for kisses again.

Then turn up thy bill, love; I'll pounce like a bird,
And through vale and through forest the smack shall be heard.
If you suffer for kisses, I'm thar, you may bet,
And I'll kiss thee from morning till the sun shall be set.

Come kiss me? Why, thunder, I'm one of that kind—
I'm the chap of all others you're trying to find,
So you needn't look further, I'm in for the chance,
Though the blood should "carvort" and your pulse it may dance.

So bring on the fruits, love—your kisses I mean,
For I dream now of nothing but peaches and cream,
I am waiting and panting, and praying till then:
So come along dearest, as quick as you can.

BOUCHALEEN DHOWN.

My true love he dwells on the mountains,
Like a war eagle "fearless and free,"
By the side of the low tuning fountains
That wander through wild Annalee:
His soul has more valor and honor
Than a king with a palace and crown,
For the blood of the race of O'Connor,
Fills the veins of my Bouchaleen Dhown.

Soft cead mille faltha I give him
When he comes every Sunday to me,
And what can I do but believe him
As he whispers acushla machree,
For the look is so truthful and tender
Of his bright roving eyes of dark brown,
That I'm sure e'en a lady in splendor
Would be coaxed by my Bouchaleen Dhown.

My father has riches in plenty,
And suiters for me in his eye,
But oh! let my age come to twenty,
If I don't give them all the "good bye."
For I sing for a life on the mountains,
Far away from the dust of the town,
With the song of the soft tuning fountains,
And the love of my Bouchaleen Dhown.

Irish Pioneers in California.

Between the years 1825 and 1836, some few Irishmen arrived by sea, and settled in California. These were principally masters or other officers of American trading vessels, or seamen before the mast, with an occasional adventurer in search of a home; and being wise enough to appreciate the advantages offered by a lovely country and a fine climate, and liking the character of the inhabitants, they resolved to abandon the deep and its dangers, and cast anchor for life on shore. Generally settling in the different sea-ports, they soon, owing to their knowledge and industry, became independent: and having married and become naturalized, they were recognized and treated by the kindly and hospitable people amongst whom they came as belonging to themselves. Their similarity of religion was greatly in their favor with the Spaniards; and this important advantage was in no small degree enchanced by the ease and quickness with which they acquired the language of the country, as well as by their natural politeness and their deference to the fairer portion of the creation, traits for which the Irish are at all tmies honorably distinguished. These qualities and accomplishments rendered them great favorites with the descendants of the Castilian hidalgo, and facilitated their worldly success. Many of these early settlers were men of fair education and good manners, and came principally from the Southern provinces of Ireland. Among them were to be found Reads and Dens of Waterford, Allen of Dublin, Murphys of Wexford, Burkes of Galway, Coppingers of Cork, and others. Some became extensive proprietors of land and raisers of stock, others practiced as physicians, while more acquired wealth and repute as enterprising merchants; and they with their families, that quick sprung up around them vigorous in body as in intellect formed the nucleus of the Irish and Catholic element which was to be so wonderfully strengthened by subsequent and continuous emigration.

We are inclined to linger over the history and fortunes of Don Timoteo Murphy, who, arriving in 1829, in Trinidad, where he had spent two years, rose to an eminent position as Administrator of the Mission, and Alcalde for the district of San Rafael, acquired vast riches during a residence of a quarter of a century in the country. He is thus spoken of by a fellow-country, himself one of the most fortunate and respected of the Irish settlers in California: "Murphy was a splendid specimen of a man, tall powerful, and well built, a good horseman and keen hunter. He imported the first greyhounds to California, and kept a kennel of 20 to 30 hounds; the abundance of deer, elk, and antelope, afforded material for the chase, and Murphy gave them little rest. He was hospitable, kind and generous, and looked up to as a father by the people of the country."

That Martin Murphy's venture was full of peril, notwithstanding its fortunate result, may be learned from the story of the terrible disastor which overtook the Donnor partv, among whom were some Irish one of them now an extensive proprietor in the county of Monterey. This party, consisting of over 80 persons, crossed the plains in the summer of 1846. On the 31st of October they were caught in a snow storm in the Californian mountains, in which all their cattle perished; and having consumed the last of their provisions, and even eaten the leather of their saddles and harness, they were driven to the dreadful extremity of feasting on the remains of those who had died of cold and hunger. A gallant band was despatched to their relief from San Francisco; but, owing to the high state of the waters of the Sacramento, and the heavy snowfall in the mountains, they were delayed several weeks before could reach the sufferers. On the 1st of March, 1847, relief arrived, but too late for many of their party; for out of a company of 81, not more than 45 were found alive, the remaining 36 having perished horribly. One of the band sent to their aid, an Irishman, was in time to save a poor famished and frenzied mother from laying deadly hands on her own infant, to which he gave the shelter of his coat and the warmth of his honest breast all the way to San Francisco. The ranch owner, who was one of the survivors, is now living in San Juan, South, with his wife and grown up children, who shared the privations of that terrific trip across the plains. The old gentleman though now in his 74 year, is in the most robust health, and looks years younger than his actual age.

We may now see what the Irish have done in the cities of California. San Francisco, the most famous of the fair cites of the United States, will suffice as an illustration of the position and progress of the children of Erin. It is rather a singular coincidence that an Irishman, Jasper O'Farrell, laid out the city which his countrymen did so much to build up; and that in 1850, while all was still in chaos and confusion, and license was the order of the day, another Irishman, Malachi Fallon, was called on by a vote of the assembled citizens to leave his position at the mines, and assume the administration of the police affairs of the city; which he did with admitted success. It was two Irishmen—James and Peter Donahue—that erected the first foundry in San Francisco, which enterprise led to the rapid increase of mechanical industry. The same firm projected the gas-works; and with success was this important undertaking crowned, that the stock of the Company has increased to six million dollars. The same firm erected the lagest hotel in the city, at a cost of more than a half a million. The first street railway from the city to the Mission of Dolores was projected by an Irishman, Col. Thomas Hayes. Among the private bankers of San Francisco, Donahue, Kelly & Co take the lead; their firm, established in 1964, does a larger amount of business than that of Rothschild, which dates as as far back as 1849. But a still more interesting item—the first public donation to a charitable purpose was made by two distinguished Irishmen, Don Timoteo Murphy, and Jasper O'Farrell, who "donated" the lot of ground now occupied by the Orphan Asylum, and which is at present worth $200,000. The greatest ovation ever offered by the citizens to an individual was given to John G. Downey, an Irishman, who for two years ably filled the office of Governor of the State. Irishmen held a prominent position in the Convention by which the Constitution was formed; and in both branches of the Legislature Irishmen, or the sons of Irishmen, are to be found. Among the largest holders of city property, the most extensive merchants, the most successful men of business, the ablest, engineers, the most accomplished architects, and the most reliable contractors, are Irishmen; and in all branches of the legal profession, whether practising in chamber, or in civil or criminal business in courts, Irishmen enjoy an enviable repute. In fact, as soon as society, which, from the special circumstances of the country, had been in a somewhat chaotic state, settled down into its ordinary grooves, the Irish took their place among the foremost in the battle of life; and in its eager struggle for wealth and distinction they held their own with their colaborers of every other nationality.

AN EXCITING SCENE.

A great "experience meeting" some years ago was to be held one evening in ——— church, where the speakers were, as usual, to be reformed drunkards. An estimable woman, whom we will call Alice, was induced to attend. When the meeting was somewhat advanced, a late member of Congress arose with apparent sadness and hesitation.

"Though I had consented, at your urgent solicitation, to address this assembly to-night," he said, "yet I have felt so great a reluctance in doing so, that it has been with the utmost difficulty that I could drag myself forward. As to relating my experience, that I do not think I can venture upon. The past I dare not recall. I could wish that the memory of ten years of my life were blotted out." He paused a moment, much affected, and then added in a final voice, "Something must be said of my own case, or I fail to make the impression on your minds that I wish to produce.

"Your speaker once stood among the respected members of the bar. Nay, more than that, he occupied a seat in Congress for two Congressional periods. And more than that," he continued, his voice sinking into a tone expressive of deep emotion, "he once had a tenderly loved wife and two sweet children. But all these honors, all these blessings, have departed from him. He was unworthy to retain them; his constituents threw him off because he had debased himself and disgraced them. And more than all, she who had loved him devotedly, the mother of his two bades was forced to abandon him and seek an asylum in her father's house. And why? Could I became so changed in a few short years? What power was there to so debase me that my fellow beings spurned, and even the wife of my bosom turned away, heart-stricken, from me? Alas, my friends, it was a mad indulgence in intoxicating drinks. But for this, I were an honorable and useful representative in the halls of legislation, and blessed with home and wife and children.

"But I have not told you all. After my wife separated from me, I sank rapidly. A state of sobriety brought too many terrible thoughts; I drank more deeply, and was rarely, if ever, free from the bewildering effects of partial intoxication. At last I became so abandoned, that my wife, urged by her friends, no doubt, filed an application for a divorce, and as cause could be readily shown why it should be granted, a separation was legally declared; and to complete my disgrace, at the Congressional canvass I was left off the ticket as unfit to represent the district.

"When I heard of this movement, the great temperance cause, at first I sneered, then wondered, listened at last, and at last threw myself on the great wave that was rolling onward, in hope of being carried far out of the reach of danger. I did not hope with a vain hope. It did for me all and more than I could have desired. It set me once more on my feet, once more made a man of me. A year of sobriety, earnest devotion to my profession, and fervent prayer to Him who alone gives strength in every good resolution, restored me to much that I have lost; but not all, not the richest treasure that I have proved myslf unworthy to retain—my wife and children. Between myself and these the law has laid its stern impassable interdictions. I have no longer a wife, no longer children, thrugh my heart goes towards these loved ones with the tenderest yearnings. Pictures of our early days of wedded love are ever lingering in my imagination. I dream of the sweet fire-side circle; I see ever before me the placid face of my Alice, as her eyes looked into mine with intelligent confidence; the music of her voice is ever sounding in my ears."

Here the speaker's emotion overcame him; his utteranee became choked, and he stood silent, with bowed head and trembling limbs. The dense mass of people were hushed into an oppressive silence that was broken here and there by half stifled sobs.

At this moment there was a movement in the crowd. A single female figure, before whom every one appeared instinctively to give way, was seen passing up the isle. This was not observed by the speaker until she had come nearly in front of the platform on which he stood. Then the movement caught his ear, and his eyes that instant fell on Alice, who, by the kindness of those near her was conducted to his side. The whole audience thrilled with the scene, were upon their feet, bending forward, when the speaker extended his arms, and Alice threw herself upon his bosom.

An aged minister then came forward and gently separated them. "No, no," said the reformed Congressman, "you can not take her away from me."

"Heaven forbid that I should," said the minister; "but by your own confession she is not your wife."

"No, she is not," returned the speaker mournfully.

"But is ready to take her vows again," modestly said Alice, smiling through her tears.

Before that large assembly, all standing, and with few dry eyes, the marriage ceremony was again performed, that gave the speaker and Alice to each other. As the minister, an aged man, with thin white locks, completed the marriage rite, he laid his hands upon the heads of the two he had joined in the holy bonds, and lifting up his streaming eyes, said in a solemn voice, "What God has joined together, let not RUM put asunder."

Those eyes! those eyes!
O maiden, turn those eyes away;
My best ambition faints and dies
Beneath their gentle sway..
I list for Fame's loud trumpe. call,
But idly sit and linger still,
A slave within the pleasant thrall
Of those deep-eyes and thy sweet will.

Those eyes! those eyes!
While haunted by their lustrous gleam,
I care not to be great or wise.
And life seems like a dream.
The golden hours unnoted fly,
From idle night to idle day;
My books and pen neglected lie—
Oh maiden, turn those eyes away!

Not long since, the senior member of one of tho leading mercantile establishments in Troy, New York, was informed of the serious illness of a young man who resided not many miles from that city, and who, for some lenght of time, had been in the employ of the firm referred to. He requested to hasten to his beside, as he wished to see him immediately. This urgent request excited no special suprise, in view of the serious illness of the young man, the previous relations of the parties, which were something more than that of employer and employe, assuming a somewhat confidential character, for such had been the character and reputation of the young man for industry and strict business integrity that he had the charge, not only of the books of the concern, but of the daily cash account. The confidence reposed in him was such that, if necessary, the entire interests of the concern would have been entrusted to his hands. Hastening to the bedside of the young man, his friend and former employer found him in the last stage of consumption and rapidly sinking. Both being professed Christians and members of the same Church, his felt it his duty, and esteemed it his privilege, to speak to him with reference to his hope and prospects for the future world, to which he saw he was rapidly hastening. He kindly asked him how he felt with referenoe to his approaching change. He replied that all was clear and satisfactory, except one thing, and he felt he could not die without a confession. Said he: "I am before you as a thief and a robber," and proceeded to state that when in the employ of the firm of which he was a member, he was in the habit of abstracing funds from concern and of so covering the matter in his cash account that it could not be detected. The surprise and astonishment of the party to whom this confession was made can better be imagined than desribed. Such had been the confidence reposed in him that it seemed imposible he could be guilty of such a crime. He asked forgiveness, and was assured that, so far as tnis party to the firm was concerned, he had forgiveness, and was exhorted to seek the forgiveness of God. What is the most singular in this very painful case is the fact that the dying young man, who had carefully hoarded his ill-gotten means, and was thus amply able to make restitution, gave no intimation of his disposition to do so. The senior member of the firm, made known the facts to his partner, who, destrous not only of securing what was justly theirs, but of enabling the young man to obtain favor with his Maker, which they believed he could not without being conscious at laast of his duty in the case, called upon a clergyman of Troy, who visited the young man, and to whom oe freely confessed his guilt. The clergyman assured him that it was his duty at least to proffer resitution to those whom he felt he had wronged. He seemed somewhat agitated for a moment, but finally said he would do so in the ceurse of a day or two. Shortly afterward he made his will, and it was supposed by the very few conversant with the facts that he had taken that quiet way to refund the money. He died, and was universally mourned where known. His regular pastor, officiating at his funeral, unconscious of the facts above stated, indulged in the highest eulogy of the young man,s life and character, and held him up as an illustrious example for other young men to imitate, especially as it regards industry and economy, by means of which he had acquired considerable property. Strange to say, when the will came to be opened, the firm referred to was not remembered, no provision being made to restore to them the stolen money. The matter is to be legally tested, and the singularity of the case will make iu one of interest, not only to the legal fraternity, but to the community generally. The names of the parties concerned are withhelp for obvious reasons, but the facts in the case are exactly as stated.

IRISH NEWS

SATURDAY, MAY 2, 1868.

None of our subscribers can have their papers stopped until their dues for it are all paid up. This is a rule observed by all newspapers, and postmasters should note the fact for the benefit of parties ordering their papers discontinued.

London—Midnight—April 24.—The startling intelligence has just been received from Australia that Prince Alfred, while visiting Sydney, was shot and dangerously wounded by an unknown person. The would be assassin, who is said to be a Fenian, was promptly arrested. The Prince, according to the latest advices, was slowly recovering.

London, April 25.—The attempted assassination of Prince Alfred produced a profound excitement throughout the nation. The press teems with denunciations of the assassin.

London, April 25.—Particulars of the attempted assassination of Prince Alfred state that the culprit was an Irishman, named Farrell, known to be connected with the Fenian organization. He shot the Prince in the back on the 12th of March. The ball was not extracted for two days, and the wound was dangerous and painful; the Prince is doing well, but his recovery will necessarily be slow; under medical advice he had sailed for Europe.

London, April 27.—Advices from Sydney, Australia, say that Farrell, who attempted the murder of Prince Alfred, is tried, found guilty, and sentenced to death.

The trial of the Clerkenwell prisoners was continued to day. After receiving the charge from the Chief Justice the Jury retired, and after a brief absence, returned a verdict. Barrett was found guilty and all others acquitted.

Great joy prevails throughout the kingdom over the news from Abyssinia, and for the escape of Prince Alfred. To-day is observed as an impromtu holiday.

The trial of the Clerkenwell prisoners has been resumed. The evidence is closed. The Attorney-General summed up the case for the prosecution, and urged that the proof against the prisoners established their criminality beyond a doubt, but he admitted that there were doubts in regard to the complicity of Timothy Desmond.

Dublin, April 21.—The Prince of Wales to day unveiled Foley's statue of Edmund Burke, with imposing ceremonies, in the presence of a vast multitude.

Barry Keefe and two supposed Fenian incendiaries at Buckingham Palace have been arrested, and held for examination.

Johnson, the Orange Secretary, has been released from confinement in Belfast.

The trial of the Fenians accused of causing the Clerkenwell explosion is continued. Several witnesses for the prosecution have been examined, and their testimony is very strong against the prisoners.

London, April 21.—The counsel for General Eagle deny that he has sailed for America, as he has not been released on the terms granted to the other prisoners.

Official dispatches say that General Napier, on April 1st, made an advance to within thirty miles of Magdala, and his rear was close at hand. The would concentrate on the left bank of the river. News has been received from the British captives; they are all alive and safe. The troops are in good health and spirits.

London, April 21.—The trial of the Clerkenwell prisoners is continued. Mullaney, who turned Queen's evidence gave important testimony as to the meeting of the conspirators. He swore positively as to the guilt of the prisoners.

An alarming report has just been received at the newspaper offices. It is said that two men, supposed to be Fenians, were arrested at a late hour in the night, near the door of Buckingham Palace. They were carrying a hamper, which was found to contain a gallon of liquid phosphorus, or Greek fire. They made a desperate resistance, and were secured with difficulty.

In the House of Commons, last night, the bill requiring all executions to be private was considered. Gilpin offered an amendment abolishing capital punishment, which was lost. After a lengthy debate, the original bill was agreed to by the Committee of the Whole.

London, April 22.—The trial of the Fenian prisoners, Desmond, English, O'Keefe, Farrett, and Justice, accused of causing the Clerkenwell explosion, commenced to day before Chief Justice Cockburn and Justice Bradwell, the prosecution being conducted by the Attorney and Solicitor-General, and Mr Gifford. The counsel for the prisoners are Sleigh, and Straight for Desmond, Keagh for English, Green for Barrett, Williams for O'Keefe, and Orin for Justice. All will be tried together. The jury is sworn, and the trial is proceeding. The Court room and approaches are crowded, and many Policemen are present.

The trial of Burke and his fellow-prisoners will probably commence on Friday.

Dublin, April 15.—The fleeting bearing the Prince and Princess of Wales, entered the Bay this forenoon. Royal salutes were fired from all the vessels in the harbor. The Prince and Princess, on landing, were received by the Lord Lieutenant and the Marchioness Abercorn and conducted to a special train for Dublin. The station and streets were filled with people, who cheered incessantly as the train moved off. Arriving at Dublin, the party were received by the military guard of honor, and escorted to the Castle. The streets along the line were richly decorated and filled with people. The wildest enthusiasm prevailed. The procession reached the Castle at two o'clock.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

We have received several letters from members of the Fenian persuasion, some advocating one thing and some another. This week, however, we cannot make room for any of them. We have also received a letter from our cherished "Junius," abusing everybody as usual. To the writers of all these letters we say—that just so soon as we can do so, we will give you all a "show."

PERSONAL.—Our esteemed friend, Hon. Charles Gildea, member of the Legislature from El Dorado county, has been spending a few days in this city after the labors of the session. We feel glad to accord to Mr. Gildea a hearty welcome, and also, to do him the justice to say that his course as a representative of the people, during his first term in the Legislature, has been such as cannot fail to secure for him the confidence of the electors of the county he has represented, and of the whole State. Upon all questions pertaining to the interests of the people, his voice and vote were always upon the side of justice and fair play, discarding personal or other motives, while legislating for the State at large. We think Mr. Gildea can give a good account of his stewardship when he returns to his friends in Placerville.

DAIRYING.

MILK! MILK!—All, or nearly all, of the 150,000 people, who are supposed to inhabit this great city, partake, or are supposed to partake daily of milk; yet, but a very few of them, perhaps, give a thought as to where the milk comes from that is consumed daily in this fair city. We can tell them of one dairy, only five miles out of town, that sends over five hundred gallons of milk daily to the people of this metropolis. It is about five miles out, on the line of the San Jose Railroad, and located upon splendid grazing land, which is in every respect adapted for an extensive dairy. The size of the ranch is about 1,200 acres, upon which are pastured about three hundred milch cows, belonging to this dairy, which is carried on by Messrs. Towle & Smart the proprietors, who have succeeded Mr. Tolcot, the former owner and conductor for many years. The present owners have every facility for a first class dairy—plenty of grass, hay, etc.; good houses for shelter, and an extensive field range. We saw all these milch cows housed, (over 200 head) while being milked, and a finer, and more healthy lot cannot be found on this coast. They are fed upon fine grass, that grows most luxuriantly in the fields around, get the purest water to drink, and in every respect they are well cared for. Their milk, therefore, must be, and certainly is, of the purest and most wholesome kind. Three or four wagons are employed to bring the milk of this dairy to town daily, and a dozen fine-looking horses, are well cared for to do this work. Ten men are employed as milkers, and as many more are employed around the ranch. We recommend the milk of this ranch of Messrs. Towle & Smart, to our citizens, for we have partaken thereof, and we know that it is good.

Horrible Death.—The Yreka Journal gives the following of the burning of two boys heretofore briefly noticed by telegram:

On Thursday morning, April 9th, about seven o'clock, a most distressing calamity occured at Schlicht's mill on Shasta River, by the burning of his barn, in which two of his children perished. The two boys, one aged five years, and the other 3 years and 8 months, were undoubtedly playing with matches at the opening on the upper side, where the hogs came in and where there was no door, over which was a large quantity of hay. The wind was very high at the time, and the probability is that the smoke blinded them so that they were unable to find their way out, and before assistance could be rendered the whole barn was in flames. Mr. Schlicht, who was on the hillside close by tending sheep, and Mr. Flock, just below the mill, both rushed speedily as possible to the scene, but were too late to render any aid, as the barn was nearly burned down before they reached it. The body of one of the boys was found at the door sill, and the other a short distance from it inside the barn site, and both had most of their arms and legs burned off, and their heads and bodies were blackened and burned to a crisp.

Charles Miller, an able bodied man, was brought before Judge Provines, yesterday charged with the larceny of a loaf of bread, of the value of five cents. A vigilant Local Officer saw Miller take the loaf from off a door-step, so he corralled and brought him to the station house in triumph. The prisoner pleaded "Ouilty," but at the same time said he had been out of employment for some time, was willing to work, but was unable to procure it, and that for two days had hak nothing to eat. He saw the loaf as he was passing up the street, and took it to satisfy the pangs of nunger. He was ordered below for twenty-four hours.

Special Notices.

The Fenian Picnic to Belmont Park, on May 10th, will be the grandest affair of the kind that has ever taken place on this coast. Every one with his wife and children will go to it. All the beauty and loveliness of the country will be there, and why shouldn't WE be there? Tickets can be had from any of the gentlemen named on the Committee. Country orders supplied at once. Send in your orders without delay.

Homesteads—Splendid chance for persons of small means. DUNCAN & CO., offer homestead lots at the low price of $90 each, and but a short distance from the city. This tract is on the mutual plan. See advertisement.

Oakland Homesteads—The Jones Tract, only three quarters of a mile from the Station on the Oakland Railroad. Half acre lots. Splendid chance for investment. Maps can be seen, and all needed information obtained at the office of E C SESSIONS, 507 California street. See ad.

London, April 26—Despatches from Abyssinia state that a battle was fought on Good Friday before Magdala. Theodore commanded in person. He was defeated, and retreated into the town. The Abyssinian loss was heavy. On the Monday following Gen. Napier ordered an assault upon Magdala. The town and citidal were carried by storm. Theodore was slain, and a large number of his warriors were killed, wounded, and taken prisoners. The capital remains in possession of the British. The loss of the British was small. The British captives were found in the city alive and well, and were set free. Napier's immediate return to the sea coast is expected.

On the 22d, in London, Mr. Bright presided over an anti-Tory meeting, at which resolutions were adopted favoring disendowment of all religious sects in Ireland. In the English House of Lords, the bill to abolish Irish Church rates passed to a second reading.

Late despatches from Japan represent that country in a state of anarchy. The boat's crew of a French corvette had been cruelly butchered by natives, who had also compelled all foreign agents, except the English, to haul down their flags.

Virginia, April 22-2 P. M.—From C. W. Gates, of Gates & Stone's Crossing, on the Truckee, we learned the following particulars of a horrible Indian massacre, which took place on Friday or Saturday last, at the Red Rock Rancho, east of Long Valley, and about fifty miles distant from this city: The Indians took the party by surprise, the whites not suspecting they were hostiles, and killed W. H. Pierson, his wife, and daughter, a young lady of eighteen, John Sutherland, and another man whose name our informant did not learn. A boy, twelve or fourteen years of age, made his escape, but was pursued by the red devils for nine miles. It appears that some ten or twelve days ago old Winnemucca told some stock men, who had a number of cottle about Pyramid Lake, to look out for their cattle, as the Pitt River Indians were coming over in that direction, and it also turns out that the Utes have for some time past been preparing for a war with the Pitt River bucks; but still the boy escaped says the murderers were Piutes, as he knows them by sight, and understands some of their gibberish. However this be, the same Indians, or some of their confederates, had a few days previously stolen several head of of of horses in the neighborhood, and at time the massacre took place, a party of settlers from Long Valley were hunting for the thieves and murderers.

The Peirson family, were well known and had numerous connections throughout this State. William H. Peirson, the head of the family, had two daughters married to brothers named Jackson hard were merchants in Sacramento; another daughter is the wife Charlas J. Prescott, a contractor and builder of this city, and a fourth daughter is married to William H. Pratt, Indian agent at Hospital Reservation, Klamath County, Hattie who was killed, was but sixteen years of age.

ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL.—There is a heavy debt hanging over this place of worship, and the Archbishop has appealed to the congregation to take steps to secure its liquidation. Last week, a respectable representation of the leading Catholic gentlemen of this city assembled on the invitation of the Archbishop, at the Cathedral, to hear a statement of the temporal adminirtration and fidancial condition of the church, and devise means to lighten its burthens and render its character, as the chief church of the Diocese. John T. Doyle, C. D. Carter, Major-General Rosencrans and others addressed the meeting, after the Archbishop, urging the propriety of prompt action to relieve, and, as far as possible, complete the chief church of the diocese, and it was unanimously resolved that an appeal should be made to the Catholic body generally, and especially to the immediate congregation of St. Mary's Cathedral. To secure harmony and efficiency, it was further agreed that the Archbishop should appoint a Committee of fifteen gentlemen, to make a conjunction with him, such arrangements for the collection as they might think proper. The following gentlemen were appointed as the Committee: D. J. Oliver, C. D. O'Sullivan, John Sullivan, Joseph A. Donohoe, John T. Doyle, M. D. Sweeny, Tyler Curtis, C. D. Carter, F. S. Winsinger, Peter Donahue, General Rosencrans, Richard Tobin John C. Horan, D. C. McGlynn, and John Kelley, Jr. At a subsequent meeting the committee reported having collected the following amounts: Donohoe, Kelly & Co., $1,000; D. T. Murphy, $1,000; Sullivan and Cashman, 500; D. J. Oliver, 500; W. C. Ralston, 500; Peter Donohue, 500; Conroy & O'Connor 500; Chas D. Carter, 500; John Parrott, 500; F. S. Wensinger, 500 Thomas Tobin, 500; Francisco de Leon, 500; J. Sullivan, 500; and so on in sums three, two, and one hundred until the amount reached $13,772, and still increasing.

On Sabbath evening, Febuary 9th, a dreadful accident occured in Union township, Hardin County, Iowa. The El Dorado Ledgar says:

The scene of this sad and fatal affair was near Mr. Ward's residence; the time of its occurence in the evening. A revival had been in progress at Lockard's school-house for some weeks previous, and the unfortunate man, whose death we record drove his family "to meeting" with unfailing regularity. On the evening which proved so terrible to him, he was returning from church. His sleigh had some six persons thercin male and female, and Mr. Spurlin was driver. There were three teams in a string, all gayly prancing homeward, and proud of the bell-chiming chorus. When within a short distance of Mr. Ward's house, where the Union Post Office is now located, the last sleigh lurched into deep rut and capsized, spilling its occupants, unharmed in the snow. Breaking from the driver's hands, the frightened team flew past the middle sleigh, and, maddened by the cries of the women and blinded with uncontrollable fury, they leaped into the advance sleigh, in which were Mr. Spurlin and a number of men and women. This stamped Mr. Spurlin's team. It ran fifty yards with furious speed, and dashed the sleigh with the force and velocity of a battering-ram against the trunk of a large tree. The sled was demolished, and its occupants scattered, maimed, and killed, in every direction. Mr. Spurlin had been beat on the head by the iron shod feet of the horses, which leaped in on his company. Then a large stake had been driven deeply into his head. Mr. James Kirkham was cut and crushed in a dreadful manner, and all the others severely injured. Drs. Crusack and Underwood were immediately brought to the distressing scene, when all the sufferers were cared for. In spite of science and surgical skill, Mr. Spurlin expired after six hours of intense suffering. The remainder of the party Mrs. Spurlin, Mr. and Mrs Pitts, and John Jones will all likely recover. Miss Fannie Jewell, who was in the rear sleigh, made a narrow escape from death, and is now suffering severely. Many of them will bear the scars of this accident on their bodies to the grave. Mr. Daniel Spurlin, the deceased, was about 60 years of age. He had been in the country before its organization in 1853, and at the time of unexpected and violent end, was hale and hearty. He had a fine large farm, a wife and family, and neighbors who deeply mourn the loss of the husband, father and friend.

Bueno Buro," the lively and gossiping Washington correspondent of the New York Citizen, gives the following pen and ink likeness of a celebrated female lobbyist, widely known at the capital of the nation. He says: "To this city there came from St. Louis a lady whose robust figure was without coarseness, and attracted the gaze of the sternest and most uncompromising of the legislators by its voluptuous appearance. Her face was strongly marked, yet beautiful, except to those who admire womon for a lack of intelligent expression, or a doll-like placidity of features. Her chin protruded firmly, and was swenty dimpled, while above it poured two cherry-ripe lips. Her nose was exquisitely turned to the most excruciating fine compromise between sensuality and states-womanlike abnegation of worldliness. Her cheeks, round and plump, were always covered with the fresh pink blush of health, and her cheek bones were just prominent enough to dimple them bewitchingly. Her eyes surmounted by brows as closely penciled and delicately arched as any artist could desire, were twinkling and laughing brilliants, sharp and piercing orbits, luscious hazel brown in color, and they spoke volumes of seductive persuasiveness, or repelled with the adamantine imperviousness of an iron-clad. She weighed about one hundred and sixty pounds, and dressed in a close-fitting basquine, and many were the members to be found basking in the sunlight of her delicious smiles. Black silk was the material of the basque, corded, fluted, fricaseed riggled, and thingum-bobbed with a confusing profusion of jet pendents and bugles, which rattled and jingled as, with the stateliness of a queen, she walked through the corridors of the Capitol, commanding the admiration, and successfully demanding obsequious service of all with whom she came in contact. Her voice was like the warbling of the morning lark, or solemnly plaintive like the song of the dying swan, and she was an elegant elocutionist, understanding to perfection the gesticulations of an orator, or the overpowering and conscience-soothing little pitty-pat-with-her-delicate-hands on-your-coat-collar, of a coaxing, wheedling, befuddling little angel. She was spare in the use of jewelry, yet wore rings, chains, and diamonds enough to add an air of reckless plenitude to her regal presence. Dost like the ambrotype?"

NEWS FROM IRELAND.

Dublin.

At a Dublin Police court, on the 27th ult., a young man named Thomas Wiseman, was brought up on remand charged with being a member of the Fenian Brotherhood. It appeared from the information of Corydon had been in the habit of attending Fenian meetings at Cark and Dublin, and that he was seen in Dublin a few days previous to the so-called "rising" last year. Mr. Anderson, Crown Solicitor, applied for a further remand, in order to make inquiries regarding the prisoner at Cork. The application was granted.

A young man named Michael Briscoe, an ironmonger's assistant, residing at 4 Hamilton Row, Dublin, was shot on the night of the 27th ult., at Hoey's public house, in Gregg's land. Briscoe was drinking with some other young men in a rom off the bar, when a shot was heard, and immediately the others rushed out of the building in terror. On those who stood at the bar entering the room they found Briscoe lying on the floor and blood flowing freely from a wound in the thigh or groin. He gave little or no information when questioned, as to the shooting; and insisted that the parties were all strangers to him, consequently he could not identify any of them. When Briscoe's clothes were searched, eight or nine revolver percussion caps were found in his pocket, which fitted the nipple of a revolver which had been found in the street. Patrick Flynn, a nephew of Hoey the publican, and a man named Farrelly, waiter in the public house, have been arrested on suspicion. The revolver found in the street was a five-chambered one, and each chamber was loaded.

The Dublin Evening Mail says: It is known that Mr. Heron's retainer comes from the American Government, and that he has received a fee of two hundred guineas with his brief, in the case of Nage.

Wexford.

On the 26th ult., at a Wexford petty sessions, Matthew Duggan was chaged with having in his possession some eight or nine hundred cutlasses, contrary to the provisions of the act referred to. The defence was that the articles called swords or cutlasses were simply implements for splitting cane, which were purchased at a public auction of wrecked goods, at Kilmore, in that county a short time ago. They were part of the Fairy Queen, a vessel which was bound from Liverpool to Liberia, South Africa, with a general cargo, that was wrecked on the Saltee Island last December. Those so-called swords were rude-looking implements. The blades were about twenty-three inches long by from two to three inches with a blunt edge. The magistrates were of the opinion that Dugan had not transgressed the law by purchasing those articles at a public auction, but they directed the constrbulary to retain the weapons until the legal officers of the Crown could by consulted in the matter.

Kilkenny.

The Waterford News of a late date says:—We understand that in consequence of the additional heavy and sometimes dangerous duty imposed on the Irish police, several of them are leaving the force in different parts of the country, and going to America. Last week, Mr. Thomas Dalton, 24 years of age, a native of Kilkenny, in this city, sent in his resignation. He informs us that he purposes going to AAerica.

A correspondent of the Dublin Freeman, under date Feb. 26, says: So propitious is the weather and so manageable the soil that spring work is being pushed forward with unwonted activity in this county. It is a good number of years since there was seen in this part of the country so large a breadth of ground laid under the dominion of the plow and harrow as there is this year. This change has been caused by the unusually high price of corn for some time past, and the unremunerative price of sheep during the same period, and illustrates the superiority of what is termed "mixed farming," which, on an average of years, is in every point of view, for many reasons, at the same time the most profitable and the least exrensive, and therefore the best.

A policeman stationed at Callan was recently called on to resign, because he had been heard speaking "seditiously"—that is, patriotically—while under the influence of "mountain dew." His name has not been given.

Carlow.

The following property was recently sold in the Landed Estates Court Dublin, as estate of the assignee of Henry Bunbury:—Two fifth parts of a certain perpetual annuity of £20, one-fourth of a further perpetual annuity of £10, and two-fifths of a further perpetual annuity of £60, making together the annual sum of £34 10s., charged upon a lease in perpetuity of the lands of Leighlinbridge, situate in the barony of Idone East, and also upon the lands of Roscolvin, barony of Kilkea. Mr. Charles Thorp purchased, in trust, at £500.

Kildare.

At a late Naas petty sessions a boatman named Thomas Lloyd was charged with being drunk and shouting that he "was a Fenian!" He was sent the prison for one month. Lloyd is said to be a native of Edenderry, King's County.

Clare.

On the 20th ult., the beautiful Convent of Mercy, Ennis, which is one of the best arranged and most admirably conducted in Ireland, witnessed the profession of another religieuse, in the person of Miss Hogan, daughter of J. Hogan, Esq., Corofin, and a lay sister. The solemn ceremony was presided over by the Most Rev. Dr. Power, Bishop of Killaloe.

Kerry.

The Cork Examiner of a late says: A few days ago the inhabitants of this remote little town were startled at hearing that the son of a Kerry baronet, a retired officer from the British army, whose father's residence is not 100 miles distant from the borders of the Maine, was "united in matrimony" to a governess in the familyof one of our Corkaquiney magistrates, a lady of considerable beauty and personal attractions, to whom it appears he had been paying his addresses for some time previous. The ceremony was performed and the "marriage knot" tied by a layman, and not by a clergyman of the Established Church.

Tipperary.

Mr. Connell, clerk in the employment of Mr. Clibborn, Newtown, while recently walking on the quay in Clonmel, fell down and immediately expired. Deceased was about fifty years age.

A melancholy accident, involving loss of life, recently took place at Ballinaclough, near Nenagh. Fitzwilliam Walsh, Esq., had a number of men employed at one of the houses on his property amongst others an elderly laborer named Martin Ryan. The workmen and Mr. Walsh were busily engaged in removing some of the building material, when one of the walls yielded, and fell with a terrible crash, burying poor Ryan beneath it. Mr. Walsh very narrowly escaped death at the same moment, some of the falling mass actually injured him. Poor Ryan leaves a widow and four children.

Waterford.

Captain James Galway, of Colligan Lodge, Dungarvan, is the lucky owner of the dashing young Irish greyhound named "Master McGrath" the winner of the prize at the late Waterloo coursing match near Liverpool, for which the very best English and Scoth dogs contended. "Master McGrath" was reared by Capt. Galway, and was named for this contest by Lord Lurgan, for whom the dog won £9,000, while Capt. Galway's prize was fully £1,000. The victory of the Irish dog was a splendid one, and on news of it reaching Colligan, bonfires were lit and open house given to all comers in honor of "Mcgrath."

Antrim.

The amount of duty paid at the Belfast Custom House for the week ending Feb. 22 was £13,079 15s. 10d., against £17,591 15s. 11d. the previous week., and £13,143 13s. 0d. the same time last year.

Down.

The number of pounds of tea entered for consumption at Belfast for the week ending February 22d, was 61,112lbs., against 60,981lbs. the previous week, making a total of 480,641lbs. since 1st Jan., against 514,177lbs. same time last year.

The Belfast News Letter of a late date says: The Goverament have decided on abandoning the prosecutions against a large number of the persons who have been sent forward to the Down Assizes for trial for alleged breaches of the Party Processions Act. During the latter part of last week, Constable Knott, of the Newtownards constabulary, served notices on eighteen of those who were charged with having taken part in processions at Bangor and Newtownards on the 12th of July last, informing them that the prosecutions against them had been abandoned. On the same day, Constable Morton, Constable Sullivan and Constable Lupine served similar notices on twenty-eight Roman Catholics and fourteen Protestants, who had been returned for trial for taking part in the Lady Day Riots at Tullyorier and Barnmeen.

Fermanagh.

On Saturday evening, February 22, as two men, M'Manus and M'Cusken, were returning home from the market of Lisnaskea some bandying of words took place, and a row ensued, when M'Manus, who was apparently under the influence of drink drew out a knife from his pocket and stabbed M'Cusken about the region of the right kidney so badly that the unfortunate fellow fell dead after runing about ten yards. On Monday an inquest was held, when the jury, after weighing carefully the evidence given by witnesses, returned a verdict of willful murder against Conor McManus. Thomas M'Cusker, resided near Crom Castle, and was a tenant of the Earl of Erne, and leaves a wife and four children to mourn his untimely fate. Conor M'Manus, the murderer, belongs to Enniskillen; he had served five years in the Fermanagh Militia.

Galway.

The patriotic Archbishop of Tuam has contributed £5 towards the subscription in aid of the family of Dr. J. C. Waters, incarcerated in Kilmainham prison.

The Tuam Herald has the following obituary:—"Died last week, at Flaskagh, near Dunmore, in this county, James Ronan, Esq., aged 115 years. The deceased by his industry and perseverance in early life acquired some extensive property, and was a good landlord and a kind and benevolent man. Up to a recent period he was able to dischrge his ordinary business duties, and within the last two years has been known to attend the neighboring fair and sell stock, &c. A sister of the deceased is still living, and has now attained the age of 106 years. The neighborhood of the deceased's residence would appear to be a most salubrious locality, for we are informed that a small landholder named Kearns, who resided on a mountain side, not half a mile from Flaskagh, died in 1866 at the age of 113 years."

Mayo.

The Connaught Patriot announces the death of Mrs. Flynn, mother-in-law of the late Mr. John Daly, at the age of 95 years. Her remains were conveyed to the family burial place, Castlebar, and there interred by her husband and daughter.

The name of Patk. Halligan, late of Claremorris, in the county of Mayo, post car proprietor, dealer in groceries, lodging house keeper, and landholder, recently appeared in the insolvency gazette.

Cork.

On the 13th ult., the solemn and interesting ceremony of a Religeuse took place in the Convent of the good Sisters of Mercy, Clonakilty, county Cork. The Most Rev. Dr. O'Hea, the venerable Bishop of the Diocese several of the clergy, and a large number of the respectable inhabitants of the town and neighborhood were present. The young lady who abandoned the world for the service of Christ and His poor was Miss Lizzie Pigott, youngest daughter of Geo. Pigott, Esq., Dublin.

The Examiner announces that two young "Fenian suspects," named O'Brien, have been released from Mountjoy prison on promise of at once sailing for America. One named James O'Brien, belongs to Cork, and had been a porter at the public house of J. J. Geary, North Main street, and suffers from the loss of an eye.

The Dublin Freeman of February 28, says: The house of the Rev. Mr. Leslie, Millmount, was attacked last night by a party of twenty-five. Mr. Leslie refused admittance, rang the alarm bell, and then fired on the assailants, who discharged many shots at the house. The police hearing the alarm, came, but the suspected Fenians had decamped.

The Constitution of a late date says: A couple of days ago, a man named White, of the Douglas road, purchased a heap of manure from a man who lives in a lane near the Gallows Green. On removing it three revolvers turned up. They were instantly seized by some persons who were standing by, and who evidently knew of their being there. White struggled to get them, but a crowd gathering, he feared personal violence, and let them be taken off, by whom, he knows not, or where to. Since then, there has been no trace of them. The house of a man named Riordan, who lives a little beyond Ballyphehane, was a few nights ago attacked by four fellows, who demanded admittance. Riordan came to one of the windows, and after taking a view of the lads refused to open his door, upon which one of them fired a shot through it. The bullet struck the wall on the opposite side.

Limerick.

It is said that on on Friday evening, Feb. 7th, some bottles filled with a combustible matter, resembling "Greek Fire, were found in the yard of Mr. Goodwin, having attached to each neack a lucifer match. When observed, the straw around the spot had burned up, though no explosion had taken place, owing (as conjectured) to the bottle falling, from wherever it had been thrown, on a bundle of straw, with the neck in an inclined poosition. Mr. Goodwin took the bottle, and though having his fingers burned for his pains, took it across the street to the police station, where he gave it to Sub constable Kelly, detailing the circumstances of the affair. The police thereupon made an examination of the place and of some adjoining premises, and it was found that another bottle, similarly filled and prepared, had been thrown into the yard in the immediate vicinity which is used for stabling the horses, &c., of Mr. O'ullivan, of Kilmallock, whose coaches ply between that town, Bruff, and Limerick; but in this case also the bottle had not been broken and no damage had resulted.

A Limerick correspondent of the Dublin Freeman says Mr. George Francis Train was refused the use of the theatre, Athenæum, or any other building in Limerick wherein he could lecture.

Chicago, April 16.—We have this morning details of the Erie Railroad disaster which happened to the last night train from Buffalo to New York. About 3 o'clock, yesterday morning the train, consisting of the engine, baggage, post-office, four passenger and tree sleeping-cars, and containing a number of railroad and freight agents, arrived at Carris Rack, sixteen miles west of Port Jervis. The train was running at the usual rate of speed along the embankment, 75 or 100 feet high. It is supposed a rail broke, and the last five cars on the train were precipitated down the precipitous descent, rolling over and over upon jagged rocks. At the bottom the last car took fire, and thirteen persons were burned to death. The cars thrown over the cliff, which borders the Delaware River, were passengers cars. It was intensely dark. On reaching the foot of the bluff, two cars were found to be in the river and one on fire. There were over 200 passengers on the train. Six bodies were recovered last night. No list has yet been received of the killed or wounded. The accident is one of the most terrible in the annals of railroading in America.

Ottawa, April 28—The trial of Whalen for the murder of McGee, has not yet taken place, but there seems to be no doubt of his connection with the assassination. The House of Commons sat with closed doors, the subject under consideration was the suspicion of Fenianism that has fallen upon certain employes of the House, in connection with the recent assassination. A message from the Duke of Buckingham, relating to the assassination, was laid before both Houses, and an address, conveying the sympathy of Parliament and her Majesty, and expressing indignation at the attrocious crime, was agreed upon in Senate. Senator Mitchel was particularly severe on the Fenians, and expressed the hope that vigorous effort would be made to stamp it out of the Dominion.

GRAND RE-OPENING OF THE

ANATOMICAL MUSEUM and GALLERY of Natural History and Science, Eureka Theatre, Montgomery street. On Monday, 18th March, this truly elaborate and magnificent collection, of all that is strange, wonderful and curious in Science, Natural History, and Art, was thrown open to the public. Extensive Embellishments have been made. The additions will include an immense collection in Botany, Ethnology, and Entomology. Comparative Floral and Botanical Anatomy will be largely illustrated, and form a leading feature of the institution. Every exertion has been used to render this superb collection the most instructive, agreeable, and useful in the world. Insect and animal life will be beautifully displayed, and the celebrated Du Chaillu Gorilla which was exhibited alive in Paris, has been added to the already vast collection of human and comparative Anatomy. The Museum is open daily from 9 a m to 5, and from 7 to 9 p m. Sunday from 5 to 10.

Wednesday in each week devoted exclusively to Ladies, on which day competent and intelligent females will be in attendance to pay visitors any attentions they may require. ap1

THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH.

Every Man his own Physician.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS,

AND

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

Disorders of the Stomach, Liver, and Bowels.

The stomach is the great centre which influences the health or disease of the system—Abused or debilitated by excess—indigestion, offensive breath and physical prostration are the natural consequences. Allied to the brain, it is the source of headache, mental depression, nervous complaints, and unrefreshing sleep. The Liver becomes affected and generates bilious disorders, pains in the side, etc. The Bowels sympathize by Costiveness, Diarrhœa and Dysentry. The principal action of these Pills is on the stomach, and the liver, lungs, bowels and kidneys participate in their recuperative and regenerative operation.

Erysipelas and Salt Rheum,

Are two of the most common and virulent disorders prevalent on this continent, to these the Ointment is especially antagonistic, its "modus operandi" is first to eradicate the venom and then complete the cure.

Bad Legs, Old Sores, and Ulcers.

Cases of many years' standing, that have pertinaciously refused to yield to any other remedy or treatment, have invariably succumbed to a few applications of this powerful unguent.

Eruptions on the Skin.

Arising from a bad state of the blood or chronic diseases, are eradicated, and a clear and transparent surface regained by the restorative action of this Ointment. It surpasses many of the cosmetic and other toilet appliances in its power to dispel rashness and other disfigurements of the face.

Female Complaints.

Whether in the young or old, married or single, at the dawn of Womanhood, or the turn of life, these tonic medicines display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible in the health of the patient. Being a purely vegetable preparation, they are a safe and reliable remedy for all classes of Females in every condition of health and station of life.

Piles and Fistula.

Every form and feature of these prevalent and stubborn disorders is eradicated locally and entirely by the use of this emolient; warm fomentations should precede its application. Its healing qualities will be found to be thorough and invariable.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bunions,	Swelled Glands,
Burns,	Sore Legs,
Chapped Hands,	Sore Breasts,
Chilblains,	Sore Heads,
Fistula,	Sore Throats,
Gout,	Sores of all kinds,
Lumbago,	Sprains,
Mercurial Eruptions,	Stiff Joints,
Piles,	Tetter,
Rheumatism,	Ulcers,
Ringworm,	Venereal Sores,
Salt Rheum,	Wounds of all kinds,
Scalds, Skin Diseases.

CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "HOLLOWAY, NEW YORK AND LONDON," are discernible as a Water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

. Sold at the Manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine, throughout the civilized world.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each pot and box.

PATTERSON HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION:

We desire to call the attention of the public to the lands of this Association, believing that they offer inducements for profitable investment seldom equalled. These lands are situated within five minutes walk of the High Street Station, upon the Alameda Railroad, and have an extensive frontage upon the County Road, and also upon High Street. A never-failing stream of pure water runs the entire length of the tract, and the soil is rich and fertile. The view of the Bay, the City of San Francisco, and the adjacent Islands from this point, is one of great beauty. Every lot is eligibly situated for building, no grading being necessary, and there is not an undesirable lot in the tract. The climate of Alameda is noted for its salubrity, the cold winds and fogs so prevalent in San Francisco during the summer months, not reaching there. Commutation tickets are furnished by the Railroad and Ferry Company at five dollars per month. No well informed person doubts that San Francisco is destined to become a great city; no city in the world gives promise of a brighter future. From the frozen regions of the North to the Bay of Panama, no other harbor exist at all adequate to accommodate the commerce of the Pacific. With a warm and genial climate, our mountains rich in mineral wealth, and our valley of the Nile in fertility, a tide of immigration is setting towards us that will soon people our State with millions. Our grain, carried through the channels of commerce, is known in all the great marts of the world for its excellence, thus attracting attention and directing emigration to our shore. Never since the memorable years of eighteen hundred and forty-nine and fifty has the California fever raged as high in the Eastern States as it does now. Each mail brings us news of coming multitudes. Large amounts of European and Eastern capital are being sent here for investment; railroads are being built and manufactories established; and it is confidently believed that an era of unexampled prosperity is before us. San Francisco, as the great commercial center of trade upon this coast, has already felt the beneficial effects of our increasing prosperity, and a large advance in the price of real estate has been the result. In a short time the cheap lands that now surround our city will have attained a value that will place them beyond the reach of men of moderate means. This has been the case in Chicago, St. Louis, and other eastern cities, and it will soon be the case here. You now have an opportunity to secure, at a moderate price and upon easy terms, a home; and you are respectfully invited to visit the property offered, and inspect it for yourselves. Parties desiring to visit these lands will take the Alameda Ferry Boat, at their wharf on Davis Street, between Pacific and Broadway, and get off at the High Street Station.

TITLE PERFECT.

THIS BEAUTIFUL TRACT OF land is within five minutes' walk of High Street Station, Alameda Railroad, and has a fontage of one half mile on High street, and about one-half mile on the county road from Oakland to San Leandro. The funds have already been subscribed for the erection of a fine Depot at Monte Vista Avenue, which is distant only eighty rods from the further portion of this tract; arrangements have already been made with the Railroad Company to establish a Station THERE. The Terminus of the Central Pacific Railroad is established in Oakland, and, within twelve months, this great Continental Highway will pass within sixty rods of this property, thereby insuring cheap, speedy and frequent communication with the city by the way of Oakland or Alamada. The surface is a gently undulating plain of great fertility, affording fine drainage, and requiring no grading. A never-failing stream of pure water, fed, by living springs, runs the entire length of the tract. In variety and beauty the scenery is unsurpassed. Around lies one of the loveliest valleys the sun ever shone upon—dotted here and there with rural village, embowered in ever-verdant groves, which the onward march of improvement will ere long convert into one grand city. To the north and east rise those grand old mountains, varying their expression with every returning season and with the changing light of every passing hour. To the south and west, around half the circuit of the horizon, lie the calm waters of our broad Bay while beyond the great Metropolis of the Pacific stands out in bold relief against the western sky—when not veiled by her banks of fog and clouds of drifting sand.

In all the requisites of desirable homestead lots, this property is unequalled. Persons desiring to secure lots which willl prove a profitable investment, and which can be readily resold at a handsome advance, are invited to visit this property and judge for themselves.

As there is not an undesirable lot in the tract, parties purchasing shares will not have to pay a high premium to secure choice lots. An early distribution of the property will be made.

One hundred acres of choice lands adjoining the property of the Association, delineated on the same map, are offered in subdivisions, to suit purchasers, on private terms For Maps, further particulars and shares, apply to

A GREAT PUBLIC GOOD.

City Land Association,

ON THE

MUTUAL PLAN.

Maps now Ready.

Incorporated under the Laws of the State of California.

WE have opened Books of Subscription for well-located Lots, of twenty-five feet front by one hundred feet in depth, at ninety dollars per lot, in payments of four dollars per month, without interest or any other assessments. The property is situate on the Southern part of the San Miguel Rancho (U. S. Patent), and has a fine frontage on the San Jose Railroad. It is bus a short distance from the Mission, and public streets are laid out to the very boundary of the tract, WHICH IS IN THE DIRECT LINE OF CITY IMPROVEMENTS. Every lot is suitable, at once, for building purposes, and can be supplied with the Spring Valley water. The San Miguel Rancho title is a most perfect and reliable one. By a number of subscribers joining together in the purchase of this property, we can place the lots on the terms proposed, that is, at ninety dollars each, in payments of four dollars per month, without interest—giving the Association the benefit of the mutual principal, as if corporated in insurance and other companies. The streets and blocks are being laid out by Mr. W. P. Humphreys, the City Surveyor. The streets will be all eleven feet wider than either Washington or Clay streets, and the main avenue on the railroad is the width of Market street. There are no small streets.

This plan has been projected for the purpose of aiding all who may wish to benefit by it in obtaining lots at a very low rate, and thus giving to each one an opportunity to share in the profits of Homestead Unions.

The officers of this Association will be reliable business men, and one of our principal Banks the Treasurer of its funds.

Having been appointed Agents, until the organization is completed, we are ready to give to our friends and the public all the information on the subject that an experience of eighteen years in real estate in San Francisco qualifies us to render them.

The Books of Subscription are now open. Maps of the city, and of the Property, showing its exact location, with a plan of the streets, blocks, and lots, are now ready for distribution.

REGULATIONS.

The undersigned, to save much correspondence, would state the conditions on which deposits will be received by the California Building, and Savings Bank, from the 1st day of January, 1868, to the 31st day of December, 1868:

First—Interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum, clear of all city, State and Federal taxes, will be paid on all deposits which shall be 30 days in the Bank

Interest will be allowed on money from the date of its deposit, but no interest for fractional parts of a month.

No fees for pass books or entrances.

Second—Interest, if required, will be paid quarterly in San Francisco, or in any of the interior towns of the Pacific States. Also, in New York, London, Dublin, Paris and Hamburg.

Deposits may be withdrawn at any time on giving thirty days' notice, and will, if required, be forwarded in gold coin, to any place designated by the depositor. If interest be not drawn it will compound every six months.

Third—"Commercial Deposits" received to be checked for at sight, on which interest at the rate of one half per cent. per month will be allowed, in quarterly settlements, on the average daily balance.

Fourth—Children's "Endowment Deposits" received under special conditions. By the present rate of Dividend on this class, such deposits double by compound interest every five years. One hundred dollars so deposited will come to nearly three thousand dollars in twenty-five years from date of deposit.

Calculated tables may be had at the office.

FRAGRANT

FOR CLEANSING, WHITENING & PRESERVING THE TEETH.

THIS DELIGHTFUL COMPOUND, so highly and delicately flavored by its own ingredients, is a most elegant Toilet Article, the most pleasant and convenient dentrifice in use.

It CLEANSES, WHITENS, and PRESERVES the Teeth, prevents aching and arrests decay, removes tartar, scurf, acid, accumulations, and all offensive substances from them. It prevents ulceration and strengthens the gums; induces a healthy action and consequent firmness and brightness of color; imparts a delightful and refreshing feeling to the mouth; corrects disagreeable odors arising from decayed teeth, use of tobacco, bilious or acid stomachs making it really such a TOILET LUXURY, as to ensure its daily use by both children and adults, a practice so essential for the preservation of the teeth and health of the gums.

SAPOINE is an invaluable agent in sickness, particularly in cases of Fever or languishing illness. A few drops added to a little water and agitated well in the mouth will remove the feverish coatings, bad taste and dryness, leaving the mouth cool and refreshed for a number of hours, which can be repeated as often as necessary. Sold by all Druggists on the Pacific Coast.

A NEW AND GREAT DISCOVERY!

A Certain Cure for all Diseases to which the Human Family are Subject, if taken in time.

MR. WALKER WISHES TO INFORM THE public that he has found a certain cure in the Vegetable Kingdom, in his travels among the Indians, for every disease that the human family is subject to, without the aid of calomel or any other mineral medicines. It is an infallible remedy for every disease, either for man, woman or child—and especially women. It is a perfect renovater of the system, by carrying off every particle of poisonous matter, wherein the old are made young, and the pale and sallow will become fresh and vigorous.

No family should be without them. $100 dollars will be given for an incurable case, where the Lungs are not too far gone or the bones are not destroyed by Minerals and other ways. Let no one despair, for it has cured hundreds after their physicians had given them up.

DOCTOR DOHERTY'S
Private Medical and Surgical Institute.
SACRAMENTO STREET,
Below Montgomery,
(Opposite the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's Office.) Private entrance on Leidesdorff st., San Francisco.

Established Expressly to afford the Afflicted sound and Scientific Medical Aid, in the treatment and cure of all Private and Chronic Diseases, cases of secrecy and all sexual disorders.

To the Afflicted.

DR. W. K. DOHERTY returns his sincere thanks to his numerous patients for their patronage, and would take this opportunity to remind them that he continues to consult at his Institute for the cure of chronic diseases of the Lungs, Liver, Kidneys, Digestive and Genito-Urinary Organs, and all Private Diseases, viz.: Syphilis in all its forms and stages, Seminal Weakness, and all the horrid consequences of Self-abuse; Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Strictures, Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions, Sexual Debility Diseases of the Back and Loins, Inflammation of the Bladder and Kidneys, etc., etc., and he hopes that his long experience and successful practice will continue to insure him a share of public patronage. By the practice of many years in Europe and the United States, he is enabled to apply the most efficient and successful remedies against diseases of all kinds. He uses no mercury, charges moderate, treats his patients in a correct and honorable way, and has references of unquestionable veracity from men of known respectability and high standing in society. All parties consulting him by letter or otherwise, will receive the best and gentlest treatment and implicit secrecy.

DR. DOHERTY would call attention to the following certificates, from two of his patients, who, having fully recovered their health, desire to make known their remedial agent. It will be seen their statements are fully authenticated by a notary public. The welfare of society imperiously demands their publicity, and they are given more to warn the unwary than to sound the praises of a physician, of whom hundreds of like cases can be cited, during a practice of more than fifteen years.

A CASE OF GLEET AND STRICTURE.

DR. DOHERTY—Dear Sir: I find my health so fully restored that, in common gratitude, I believe I should make you some written acknowledgement for your valuable services—particularly so as your fee was small for the work performed.

I arrived in this city from the East about one year ago, and was then suffering from an old case of Gleet, complicated with Stricture. The latter was so bad that I feared an entire stoppage of urine. Being a stranger in this city, and believing that those Doctors who gave such positive assurances of success were necessarily the best, I placed myself in their charge, and continued under their treatment until I had lost nearly all hope and a considerable sum of money.

I wish to say now that you are the sixth Doctor I have employed, and the only one that has ever done me any service. My Gleet is wholly cured, the Stricture is all removed, and my general health is better than it has been for years.

In conclusion, I would say to the many unfortunates who require medical advice, if you have any doubt as to whom you may employ, ask Dr. DOHERTY for my address, and call and see me. (I keep store in this city.) My experience may save you many dollars.

I would also add, that in the early stage of my disease, I used a large amount of the preparations advertised as an infallible cure for Gonorrhœa, Gleet, etc., but never derived any benefit from them.

I am, Doctor, very truly, yours, L—— H——
San Francisco, June 16, 1864.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS—A SWORN TO CERTIFICATE OF MOST REMARKABLE CURE OF SPERMATORRHŒA.

A desire to benefit suffering humanity, and a feeling of gratitude to DR. W. K. DOHERTY, alone induces me to make this statement. For many years I had been afflicted with that fearful disease known as "Spermatorrhœa," or Seminal Weakness, the result of self abuse, but till 1858 experienced but little trouble or inconvenience; in that year, however, I had Seminal Weakness to a fearful extent, which was soon followed by the most alarming symptoms, as weakness of the back and limbs, pain in the head, dimness of vision, nervousness and general debility. My mind, too, was affected to such an extent as to seriously impair my memory; my ideas were confused and spirits depressed. I was averse to society, had evil forebodings and self-distrust, and was entirely unfitted for any of the duties of life. From 1855 to the Summer of 1863, I employed the very best medical talent I could find and spent several hundred dollars, but in no instance obtained more than temporary relief. I had about concluded there was no relief for me in this world, but reading Dr. Doherty's advertisement, I thought I should call and see him, as he charged nothing for consultation. I had an interview with Dr. Doherty, at his office, in Sacramento street, and his fee for treatment was so reasonable, I determined to try him, though I did not expect much benefit from his treatment. On the 5th of December last, I placed myself under his care; in one week I found myself very much improved, and now, after five weeks treatment, I feel myself thoroughly cured of all my troubles, and in the enjoyment of the best health. Hoping that my experience may be of benefit to others similarly afflicted, I subscribe myself,
JAMES JOHNSTON.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 15 day of January, A. D. 1864.
[L. S.] A. G. RANDALL, Notary Public.

To Females.

When a female is in trouble, or afflicted with disease, as weakness of the back and limbs, pain in the head, dimness of sight, loss of muscular power, palpitation of the heart, irritability, nervousness, extreme urinary difficulties, derangement digestive functions, general debility, vaginitis, all diseases of the womb, hysteria, sterility, and all other diseases peculiar to females, she should go or write at once to the celebrated female doctor, W. K. Doherty, at his Medical Institute and consult him about her troubles and disease. Irregularities, suppressions, etc., will receive the Doctor's most particular attention. Let no false delicacy prevent you, but apply immediately and save yourself from painful sufferings and premature death. All married Ladies, whose delicate health or other circumstances prevents an increase to their families, should write or call at W. Dr. K. Doherty's Medical Institute, and they will receive every possible relief and help. The doctor's offices, consisting of a suit of six rooms, are so arranged that he can be consulted without fear of observation.

To Correspondents.

Patients (male or female) residing in any part of the State, however distant, who may desire the opinion and advice of Dr. Doherty on their respective cases, and who think proper to submit a written statement of such, in preference to holding a personal interview, are respectfully assured that their communications will be held most sacred. Dr. Doherty takes this opportunity of observing, that all letters are only opened and replied to by himself, and that the latter as promptly as possible.

If the case be fully and candidly described, personal communications will be superseded, as instructions for diet, regimen, and the general treatment of the case itself (including the remedies) will be forwarded without delay, and in such a manner as to convey no idea of the purport of the letter or parcel so transmitted. Consultation (at the office or by letter,) FREE. Permanent cures guaranteed or no pay. Address,

PATTERSON HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION:

We desire to call the attention of the public to the lands of this Association, believing that they offer inducements for profitable investment seldom equalled. These lands are situated within five minutes walk of the High Street Station, upon the Alameda Railroad, and have an extensive frontage upon the County Road, and also upon High Street. A never-failing stream of pure water runs the entire length of the tract, and the soil is rich and fertile. The view of the Bay, the City of San Francisco, and the adjacent Islands from this point, is one of great beauty. Every lot is eligibly situated for building, no grading being necessary, and there is not an undesirable lot in the tract. The climate of Alameda is noted for its salubrity, the cold winds and fogs so prevalent in San Francisco during the summer months, not reaching there. Commutation tickets are furnished by the Railroad and Ferry Company at five dollars per month. No well informed person doubts that San Francisco is destined to become a great city; no city in the world gives promise of a brighter future. From the frozen regions of the North to the Bay of Panama, no other harbor exist at all adequate to accommodate the commerce of the Pacific. With a warm and genial climate, our mountains rich in mineral wealth, and our valley of the Nile in fertility, a tide of immigration is setting towards us that will soon people our State with millions. Our grain, carried through the channels of commerce, is known in all the great marts of the world for its excellence, thus attracting attention and directing emigration to our shore. Never since the memorable years of eighteen hundred and forty-nine and fifty has the California fever raged as high in the Eastern States as it does now. Each mail brings us news of coming multitudes. Large amounts of European and Eastern capital are being sent here for investment; railroads are being built and manufactories established; and it is confidently believed that an era of unexampled prosperity is before us. San Francisco, as the great commercial center of trade upon this coast, has already felt the beneficial effects of our increasing prosperity, and a large advance in the price of real estate has been the result. In a short time the cheap lands that now surround our city will have attained a value that will place them beyond the reach of men of moderate means. This has been the case in Chicago, St. Louis, and other eastern cities, and it will soon be the case here. You now have an opportunity to secure, at a moderate price and upon easy terms, a home; and you are respectfully invited to visit the property offered, and inspect it for yourselves. Parties desiring to visit these lands will take the Alameda Ferry Boat, at their wharf on Davis Street, between Pacific and Broadway, and get off at the High Street Station.

TITLE PERFECT.

THIS BEAUTIFUL TRACT OF land is within five minutes' walk of High Street Station, Alameda Railroad, and has a fontage of one half mile on High street, and about one-half mile on the county road from Oakland to San Leandro. The funds have already been subscribed for the erection of a fine Depot at Monte Vista Avenue, which is distant only eighty rods from the further portion of this tract; arrangements have already been made with the Railroad Company to establish a Station THERE. The Terminus of the Central Pacific Railroad is established in Oakland, and, within twelve months, this great Continental Highway will pass within sixty rods of this property, thereby insuring cheap, speedy and frequent communication with the city by the way of Oakland or Alamada. The surface is a gently undulating plain of great fertility, affording fine drainage, and requiring no grading. A never-failing stream of pure water, fed, by living springs, runs the entire length of the tract. In variety and beauty the scenery is unsurpassed. Around lies one of the loveliest valleys the sun ever shone upon—dotted here and there with rural village, embowered in ever-verdant groves, which the onward march of improvement will ere long convert into one grand city. To the north and east rise those grand old mountains, varying their expression with every returning season and with the changing light of every passing hour. To the south and west, around half the circuit of the horizon, lie the calm waters of our broad Bay while beyond the great Metropolis of the Pacific stands out in bold relief against the western sky—when not veiled by her banks of fog and clouds of drifting sand.

In all the requisites of desirable homestead lots, this property is unequalled. Persons desiring to secure lots which will prove a profitable investment, and which can be readily resold at a handsome advance, are invited to visit this property and judge for themselves.

As there is not an undesirable lot in the tract, parties purchasing shares will not have to pay a high premium to secure choice lots. An early distribution of the property will be made.

One hundred acres of choice lands adjoining the property of the Association, delineated on the same map, are offered in subdivisions, to suit purchasers, on private terms. For Maps, further particulars and shares, apply to

Leaves a balance of	$17,460 00

* Postmasters have refused to receive and distribute the IRISH NEWS, unless the subscriber's name was written upon each paper: This could not be done because the lists of the subscribers' names were destroyed; therefore, the circulation was forced to be abandoned, and expense incurred to get another list.

† The value of each name is based upon the actual cost of obtaining them. The expense of an agent traveling on this coast amounts to $5 per day—or agents will canvass for subscribers for $2 each, and pay their own expenses. Carriers on city weeklies sell for $2 each name, and on dailies from $9 to $12 each name.

Edited by WM. PROCTOR, JR.,
Professor of Pharmacy in the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy.

"Will the Fluid Extracts go out of use owing to the high price, or can we have some authoritative modification of the formulas by which we can make them at a more reasonable cost?"
"If the latter, shall the change be in the quality of the menstruum, or in the manner of applying it, so as to reduce the quantity requisite? Can thereb a convocation of the Committee of Revision to authorize some new method or modification of the present recipies?"
With regard to the contemplated change in the quantity, or in the menstrumm itself, in the preparation of fluid extracts, I would take occasion to say that in medicine the health of the patient is the great object to be gained.
The cost of material is something, but when put into the scale with human health, and often human life, it is hardly worthy of consideration at all. Buchu (Helmbold's) will continue to be made as formerly, and if it cannot be maintained at present prices, they will have to be advanced to meet the advance in the price of material. To such as desire quantity istead of qality, we would say that water is a cheap commodity, and may be readily added by the person using the medicine, if he desires to do so.

A Case of Twenty Years' Standing.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., February 25, 1865.
DEAR SIR—I have been a sufferer for upward of twenty years, with gravel, bladder, and kidney affections, during which time I have used various medicinal preparations, and been under the treatment of the most eminent physicians, experiencing but little relief.
Having seen your preparations extensively advertised, I consulted with my family physician in regard to using your extract Buchu.

B

I did this because I used all kinds of advertised remedies, and had found them worthless, and some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no remedies hereafter unless I knew of the ingredients. It was this that prompted me to use your remedy. As you advertized that it was composed of buchu, cubebs and juniper berries, it occurred to me and my physician as an excellent combination, and with his advice, after an examination of the article, and consulting again with the druggist, I concluded to try it. I nommenced its use about eight months ago, at which time I was confined to my room.

O

From the first bottle I was astonished and gratified at the beneficial effect, and after using it three weeks was able to walk out. I felt much leke writing you a full statement of my case at the time, but thought my improvement might only be temporary, and, therefore, concluded to defer and see if it would effect a perfect cure, knowing then it would be of greater value to you and more satisfactory to me.
I AM NOW ABLE TO REPORT THAT A CURE EFFECTED AFTER USING THE REMEDY FOR FIVE MONTHS.
I HAVE NOT USED ENY NOW FOR THREE MONTHS, AND FEEL AS WELL IN ALL RESPECTS AS I EVER DID.
Your Buchu being devoid of any unpleasant taste and odor, a nice tonic and invigorator of the system, I do not mean to be without it whenever occasion may require its use in such affections.
M. McCORMICK.

A NEW AND GREAT DISCOVERY!
A Certain Cure for all Diseases to which the Human Family are Subject, if taken in time.

MR. WALKER WISHES TO INFORM THE public that he has found a certain cure in the Vegetable Kingdom, in his travels among the Indians, for every disease that the human family is subject to, without the aid of calomel or any other mineral medicines. It is an infallible remedy for every disease, either for man, woman or child—and especially women. It is a perfect renovater of the system, by carrying off every particle of poisonous matter, wherein the old are made young, and the pale and sallow will become fresh and vigorous.
No family should be without them $100 dollars will be given for an incurable case, where the Lungs are not too far gone or the bones are not destroyed by Minerals and other ways. Let no one despair, for it has cured hundreds after their physicians had given them up.
